THE TOUR

WELCOME TO TOUR '87

This is your tour of your year at Marana. The tour holds many exciting, fun-filled opportunities for all. The tour is only what you make of it though. Each of us will choose a different tour. Some tours will be a lot of hard work with rewards at the end and others just filled with fun and adventures. The travels will be different and hold many new great things for those who choose them. So, right now, travel through your memories and have fun!!!

Although here at Marana we are surrounded by much scenery, on this tour all you will see is YOU!!!

This well in the MHS commons area provides as a billboard to spur on the Varsity Football team in their Homecoming football game against long time rivals Flowing Wells.

Nerds and Preppies? Which are which? Is the questions these Juniors ask themselves as they scrape the campus on Nerd and Preppy day.

Ms. Thorstad, Student Council Sponsor, began her Christmas season early by showing her spirit on Halloween.

Songleaders Heather Reed, Erika Miller, and Mercy Hagstater perform in their beach day attire during the beach day pep rally.

Spirit Tour

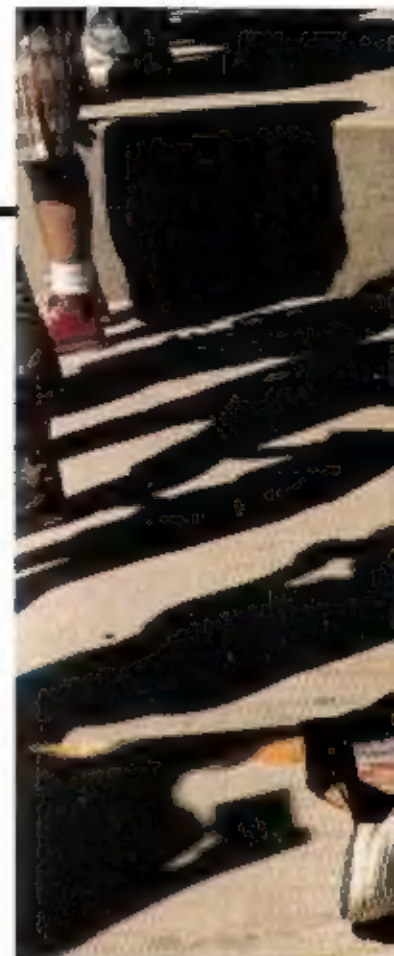

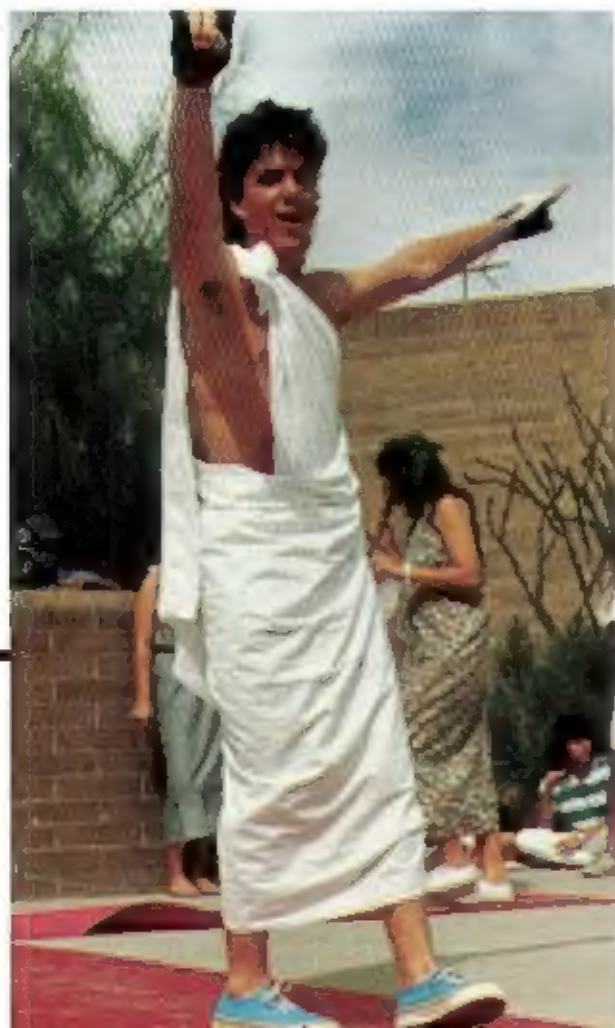

Coming to school dressed in pajamas may not be fun but during Spirit Week no one really cares. This year's Spirit Week ran from October 20 to October 24 and included such days as Nerd and Preppy Day, Boxer and PJ DAY, Blue and Gold Day and of course the ever popular Toga and Beach Days.

Monday October 20 kicked off Spirit Week with Boxer and PJ DAY. Among the events at lunch was the sleeping bag race in which all classes participated. Tuesday October 21 was Nerd and Preppy Day and the campus abounded with all sorts of nerdy people. The event of the day was the egg rolling contest in which contestants had to roll an egg across the commons with their nose. Wednesday October 22 was Toga Day and the styles ranged from Care Bears to Guess togas. The fashion show at lunch gave the student body a chance to see the latest toga styles. Thursday October 23 was Blue and Gold Day and almost all the student body dressed in school colors to show their spirit. Friday October 24 ended the week with Beach Day and the campus looked as if it had been over run with beach bums and surfers. All in all Spirit Week was enjoyed by all involved and it provided a refreshing break to the school year.

Togas are back and senior Jim O'Brien models one of the latest styles, complete with fashion accessories.

Junior Trina Maloy models one of the styles of Ancient Rome as she shows her spirit on Toga Day.

Freshman Cole Ardle feels that "Life's a Beach" and expresses his feelings by dressing up on Beach Day

Juniors Pat Hayhurst and Shaleen Stanley model the latest nerd fashions as they wait for the start of the egg rolling contest on Nerd and Preppy Day

Bedtime apparel is the dress of the day on Pajama Day and here Keri Bailey and Trisha Triebernig show off two of the latest styles.

Native Apparel

Was it Preppie? If so, you were wearing alligator shirts, penny loafers (with the pennies!) and a sweater over your shoulders.

Was it New Wave? Wild hair cuts were a sure sign. Shirts buttoned to the throat and trench coats hung to the knee made this individual look even more unique.

Was it traditional? Worn out Levi's with your favorite shirt and comfortable Reeboks.

Was it Surfer? The ageless look of torn T-shirts and clashing multicolored shorts.

Was it You? The look like no one else. Was it Bermuda shorts with an oxford shirt, or over sized sweaters? Maybe you chose to be different by your own kind of sunglasses.

Whatever the style, Marana had it all!

Casual in the Commons. Students display their "laid back," look which consists of comfortable pants and shorts and loose oversized shirts.

Yale prospects? No, just Troy Gray and Jim O'Brien dressed in preppie attire.

Homecoming

From the freshman decorating the stands and the sophomores arranging for the cars to the juniors planning the alumni reception and the seniors organizing the dance, Homecoming 1986 was a big success.

Many alumni returned to enjoy the game and the night's festivities. Last year's royalty was on hand to crown the new king and queen and the crowd was there ready for a good time. The candidates were there and as halftime approached the nervous tension became more apparent as they began to pace back and forth between the cars. As the gun signaling the end of the half went off the candidates climbed into their respective cars and prepared for their ride around the track before the crowning ceremony.

This year's candidates were seniors Troy Gray, Lori Smith, Barney Holtzman, Michelle Vermuele, Ricardo Llamas and Kim Stanislawski. The junior candidates were Darin Hoffmann, Ami Miltenberger, Derek Vivian and Christy Illig. After the ride around the track the candidates stood on the risers anxiously awaiting the announcement. As last year's royalty approached the risers to crown the new king and queen the announcement was made that the new royalty was Ricardo Llamas and Michelle Vermuele. After being crowned, Michelle and Ricky climbed into the car that was waiting to take them on their victory ride around the track and then they prepared to enjoy the rest of the football game even though the Tigers lost to Flowing Wells.

— Parent's Night —

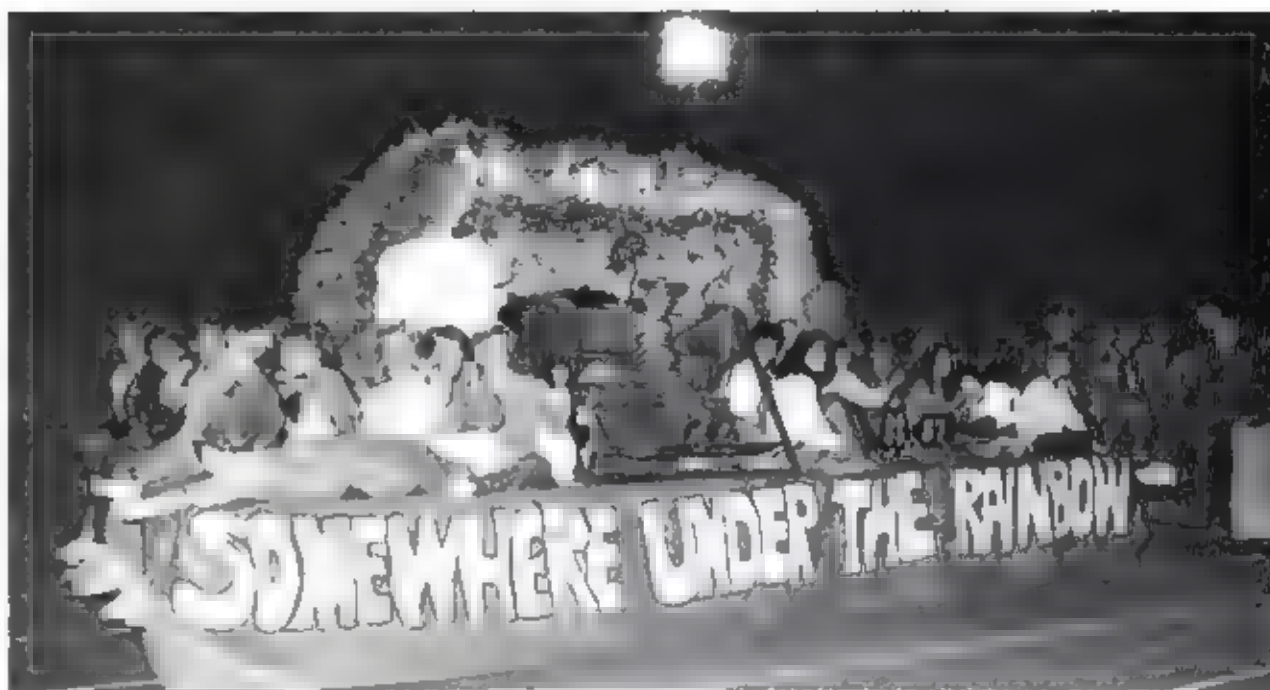

Starting with the bonfires at 6:15 p.m. and ending with the football game, Parent's Night 1986 was a success all the way around. Everybody enjoyed it and it was the perfect way to end the football season.

The bonfire competition was extremely close this year between the Junior and Senior Classes. Both classes accumulated so much wood that the wash in which the bonfires were held was piled high and still they brought in more wood. In the end the seniors won with what has been called the biggest bonfire in the school's history. The fire burned through almost the entire football game providing one more reminder of the class of '87.

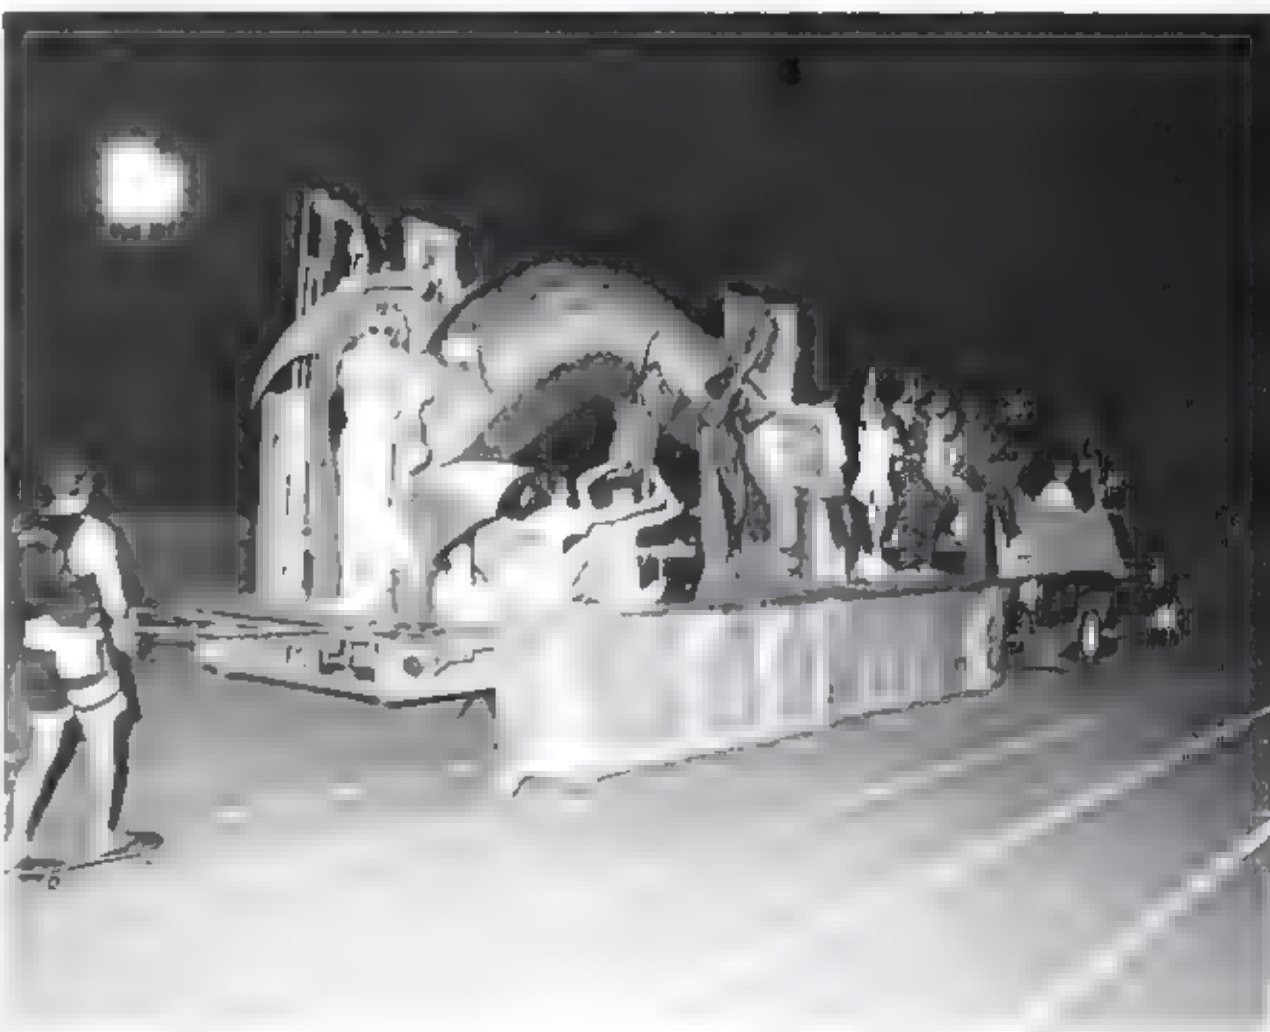

Next came the introduction of the parents of the football players. Both the parents and the football players looked proud and both seemed to be enjoying the evening's festivities. After the introductions and pictures, the parents went off to get ready to enjoy the game and the football players went off for some last minute pep talks.

When halftime arrived, there was the float competition. The theme was "Once in a Lifetime" and all of the classes incorporated it in novel and unique ways. The Junior Class float took first place followed by the Senior Class float then the Freshman Class float and finally the Sophomore Class float. All of the floats were both fun to look at and very creative in design proving that the students at Marana High have both school spirit and very active imaginations.

Although the football team lost, the 1986 Parent's Night, was a big success and everyone enjoyed it. By winning the bonfire competition with the biggest bonfire in the school's history, the Senior Class let everyone know that they will not easily be forgotten. By winning the float competition, the Junior Class served notice that they weren't going to wait for the Senior Class to graduate before beginning their reign.

"Somewhere Under the Rainbow" is where you'll find the class of 1990 as this float by the freshmen shows.

Scott Hughes "surfs" off into the future as he follows the "Once in a Lifetime" senior float.

"89 is Prime-time" is the chant of sophomores Scott Kaba, Leigh Ann Pelland, Olivia Villa, Jeanine LaFond, Lori Kucsmus and Terry Mathis as they ride on their Parent's Night float. The Sophomore Class also entered HS float in the Marana Founder's Day Parade and received a third place award.

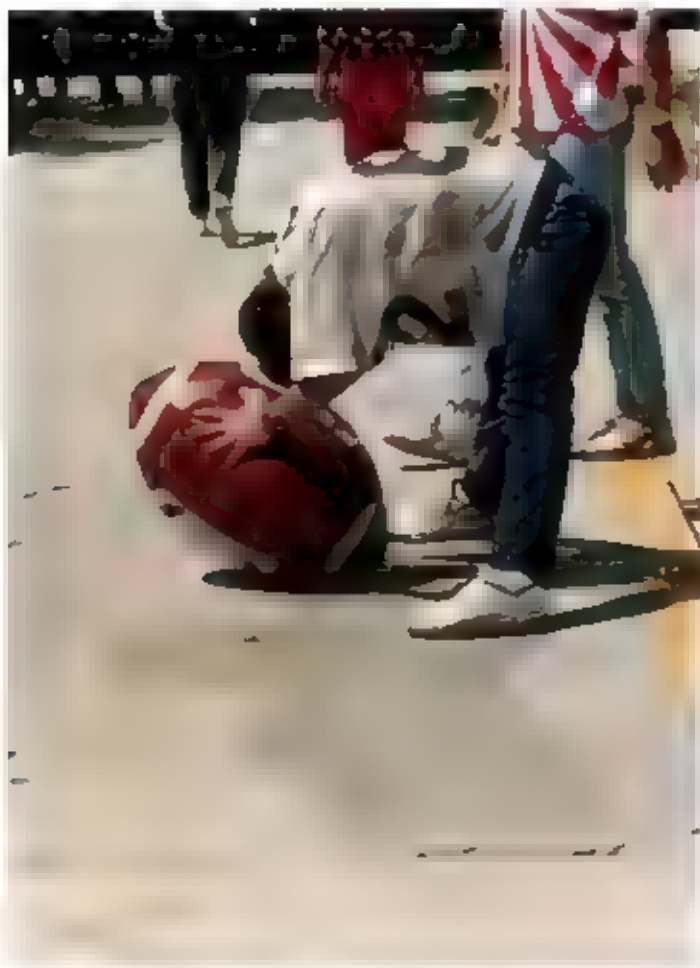

The Junior Class uses a new approach to prom promotion by using their Parent's Night float as a big invitation.

Joe Villareal and his parents await their turn to be introduced.

Rest Stop

Taking a break during the middle of the day was everyone's idea of fun and the students at Marana were no different. Everybody looked forward to spending time during the middle of the day talking with friends, catching up on homework or just relaxing in the sun. However, even doing nothing could have gotten boring every once in a while so the Student Council often planned a lunchtime activity to relieve the boredom. This year's activities included the egg drop contest, the pig-out contest, the Dating Game, the Newlywed Game, Family Feud and many other crazy and enjoyable contests. All of the activities were designed to not only provide the students with a diversion from standard lunchtime fares but also to promote school spirit.

two by two, or by themselves, many students drove to school. There were family cars, birthday cars, and second-hand cars. There were trucks, sport cars, and station wagons. Blue, red, and tan cars. Regardless of the color and make however, most vehicles served their purpose, to bring students to and from school.

Many people found driving preferable to riding the bus because of the comfort and time saved. The option of going directly to the mall or McDonald's right after school was another reason many students drove. Whatever the reason, and whatever the look of the vehicle, driving proved to be an enjoyable and important part of everyday student life.

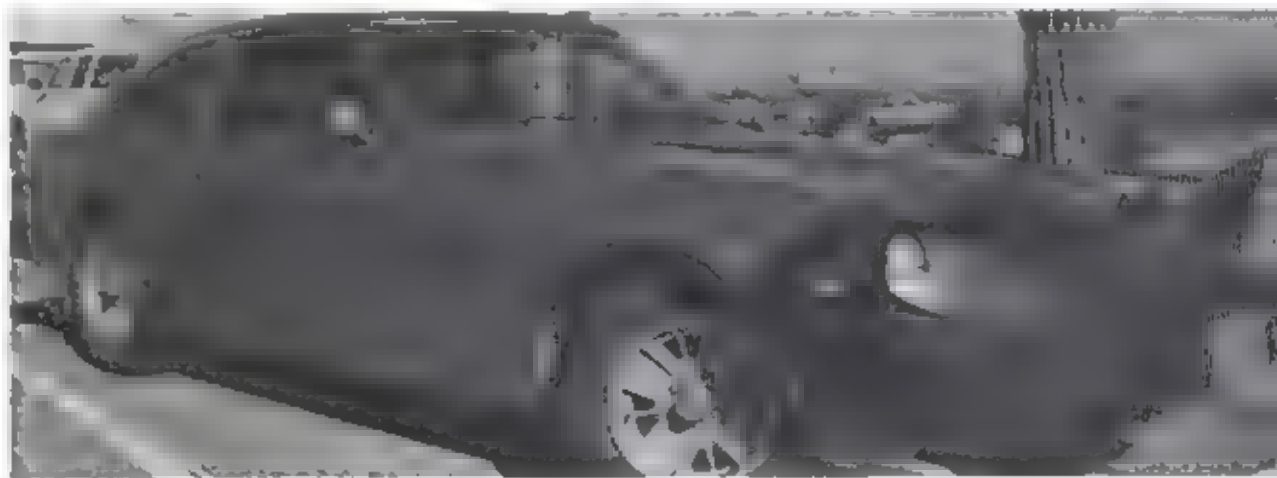

Showing signs of individuality, this Volkswagen is really "fired up". Many owners remodeled their cars to suit their own tastes. Among the unique ideas used to express personality were bumper stickers and license plates.

Sleek and fast, that's this owner's idea of what a car should be. His/her choice? A Camaro, of course.

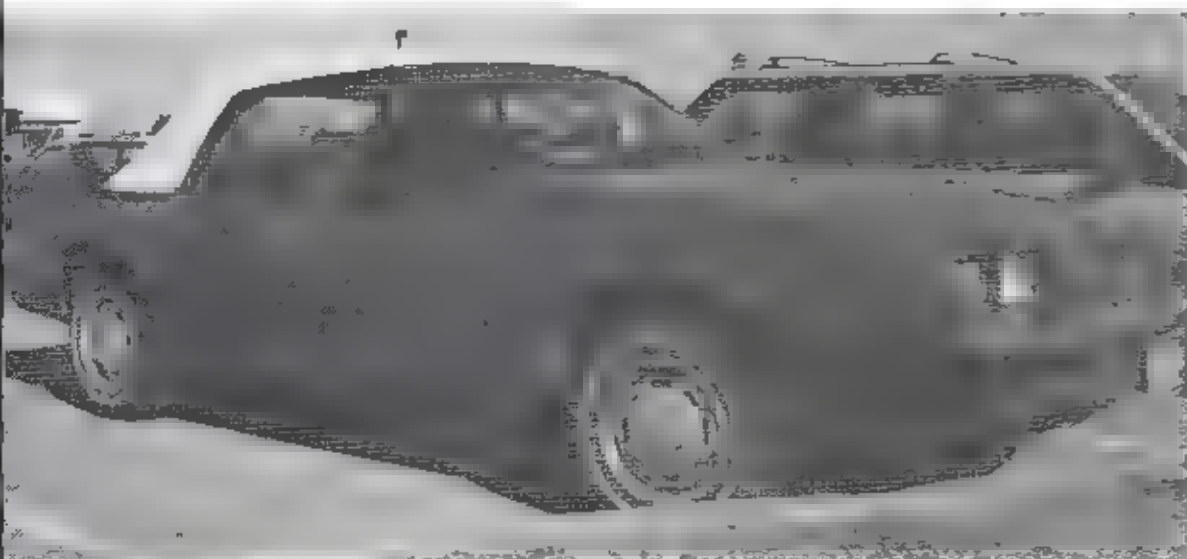

A blazer is a good thing to have living so close to the mountains, or so owner Gregg Hansen might think.

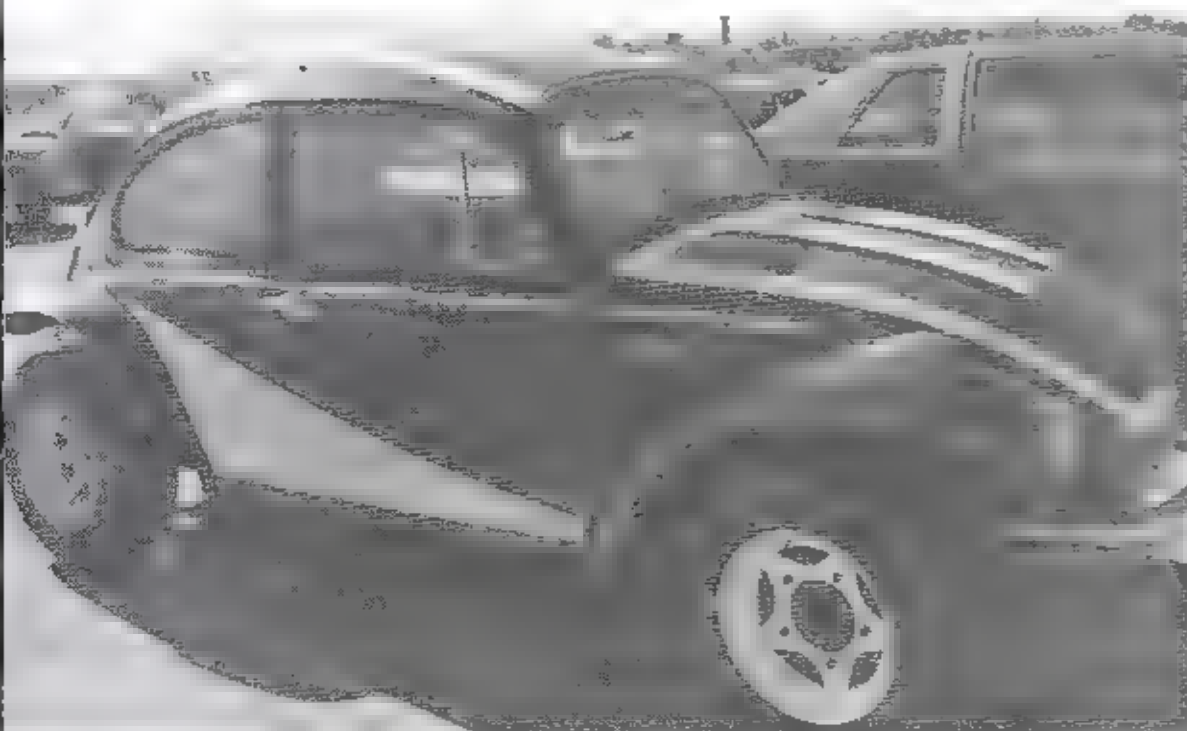

Melinda Trujillo's 280ZX is a regular in the school's parking lot. Driving to school everyday is a definite advantage over riding the bus, as some students found out.

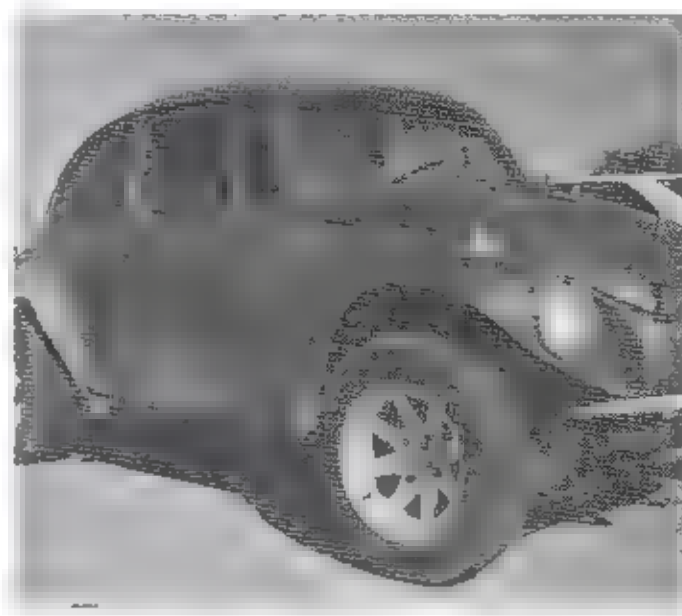

Having the option to lower or raise the top of her convertible is something that makes driving for Tracie Murray enjoyable

This sporty Baja adds a fun touch to the parking lot. Actually driving it, though, is probably the real joy, a fact emphasized by the stripes and star-like hubcaps

Darryl Becker's Baja sports a coating of mud. Did he drive through a puddle or did he just engage in some mud bogging? -- a sport well-known to Baja drivers.

Barney Holtzman made a wise choice when he purchased this Pulsar NX.

Wet 'N'

What did beach day, water balloons, Breakers and California all have in common? They all involved getting a little wet and wild. Perhaps it was because Arizona is such a dry state that the students at Marana were very interested in getting wet and going wild while doing it. During the summer there was the Breakers and other water parks around the state and for the traveling type, there was always California. However, once school started the opportunities for this kind of traveling diminish and students were restricted to what activities go on around school. To fill this need the Student Council often planned activities that involved water in some way. For example, there was the water balloon toss on Beach Day and the bobbing for apples on Halloween. Students must have enjoyed these activities because there was never a shortage of people who were willing to participate in them.

Students also had the opportunity to get wet during the many car washes sponsored by campus clubs. The car washes were generally held on Saturdays and not only provided a way for clubs to raise money but they also provided a chance for the students in the clubs to get together and have fun.

All in all the wet and wild activities on and off campus were a big success and enjoyed by all the students involved.

Slopes Away

During Christmas break this year, Marana's Ski Club ventured on their first ski trip to Apache Sunrise Ski Lodge near Pinetop. They left early (4:30 a.m.) on Sunday, from Marana and arrived at Sunrise early enough to spend the whole day on the slopes. On the first day many of the beginning skiers in the group took lessons, while the more experienced and more adventurous went directly to the top. When not skiing, club members enjoyed the indoor and outdoor jacuzzies, and lounging about the lodge.

Junior Jenifer Lewandowski said, "I thought it would be really hard to learn to ski, but it was actually easy."

When asked what he learned on the trip, sophomore Whitney Honea shared his "Rules for Skiing," "First, it's not how you ski but how you look. Second, never fall down in front of snow bunnies, and Thrid, Don't eat yellow snow."

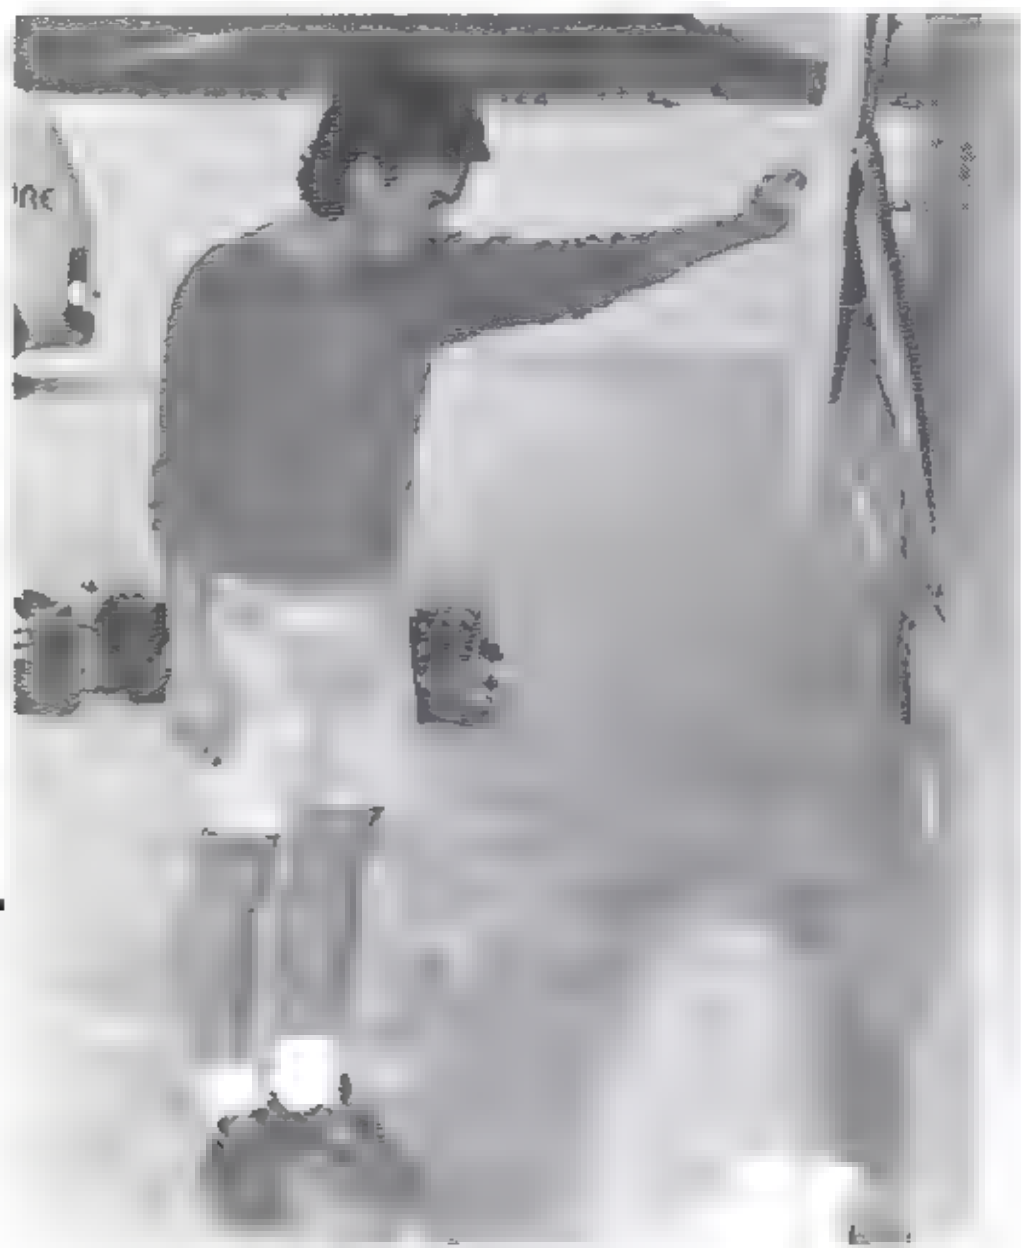

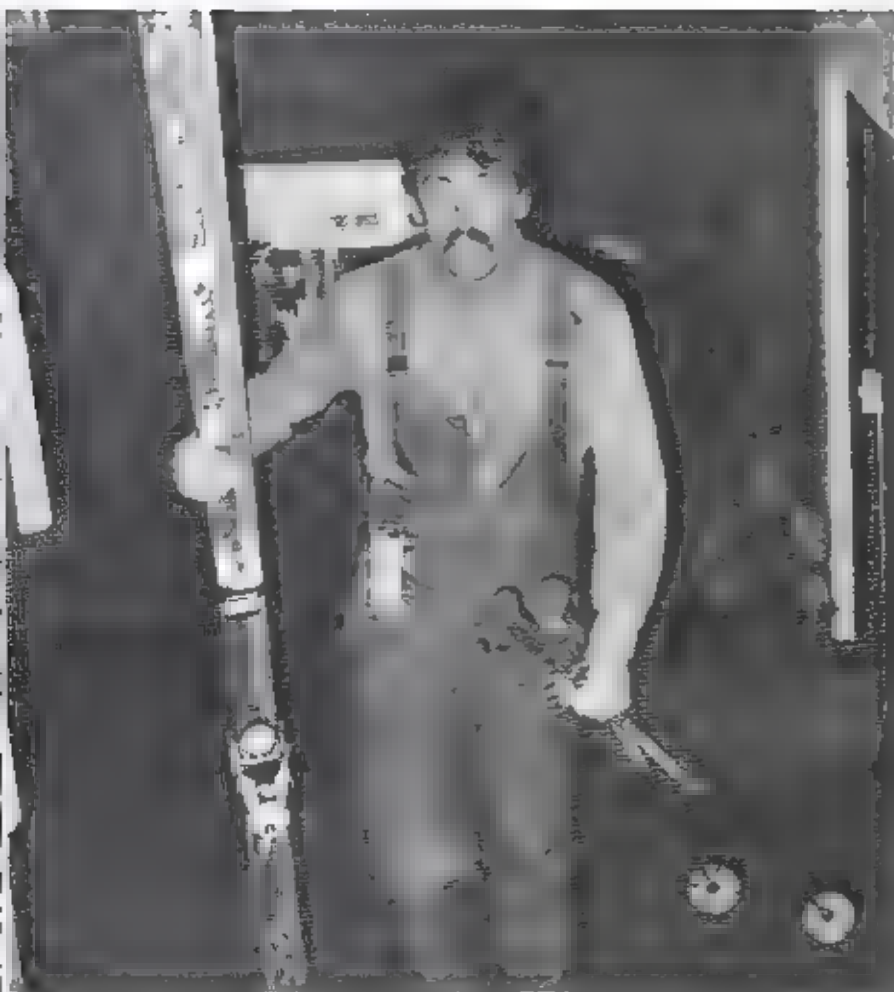

Ski clubbers sure must have put ski rental shops in Tucson in heaven with all the boots, skis, and poles they needed to rent for the trip.

Snow?

Snow? In Tucson? You've got to be kidding! But we're not. On January 16, 1987, Marana High School was "buried" under inches of snow. Native Arizonans had snowball fights galore while students who had lived back east watched indulgently and participated occasionally. During activity period the football field looked like a war zone with snowballs flying everywhere and snowmen being tackled as soon as they were put up. However, the students had fun and although coming in for third hour made for cold hands and feet, the students went at it again at lunch with what snow was left on the ground. By the end of the day most of the snow was gone and what little was left was mainly slush and mud. After school it started snowing again and although the snow didn't stick to the ground, it was a unique experience to see it snow in the desert.

Dramatic Detour -

Getting the show on the road was the name of the game. The Marana High Players brought to Marana this year, among others, the production of M*A*S*H. It stirred quite a lot of interest from students and Student Council helped the Players support the production in several ways. The first activity was a short cutting performed by the Players in the commons, on the Monday before the performance. In another activity, "Build A Still". The stills, created out of empty pepsi bottles, milk cartons, etc, had to work in the end. The Junior Class won the competition. The final activity was a M*A*S*H dress-up day sponsored on the day of the performance. This support helped the Players very much and resulted in its largest audience for both the matinee and evening performance.

Allisan

Allisan — the tour begins! The group is made up of Troy Gray vocals, Kelly Ritchotte on guitar, Matt Federoff on bass, Denny Seefieldt on guitar, and Rich McKinley on drums. Friday the fifth of December they played an awesome concert for the school during fifth and sixth hour

Some of their original songs they sung were "Copa De Oro", "Beauty and the Beast", "Fight to Last", and "Flesh and Steel". Some of the other songs were "Don't Talk to Strangers" by Dio, "Love You to Pieces" by Lizzy Bordon, and "Trooper" by Iron Maiden. The fans are anxiously waiting for either another concert or for their record to show up in the music stores

Friends

What is a friend? According to Webster's Dictionary, a friend is a person one knows well and is fond of. The dictionary doesn't really express the true feelings that a friendship has.

Friendships includes the acquaintance and the best friend. Acquaintances just exchange "hello's." Best friends though, are always together. They call each other on the phone, get together on the weekend, and spend all their extra time together.

A friend is someone you can talk to, who accepts you as you are and tries to understand some of the bizarre things you do! Friends can share special memories and secrets that happen throughout a lifetime. The best thing about being or having a friend, is that you can be as strange as you want and have the courage to do things you'd never do without that person.

Extra Effort

Extra effort credited many students with awards and medals

Junior Ami Miltenberger received an appreciation award for all the extra time she put into art projects for Marana. She repainted the Tiger head on the pressbox for V-Club. Ami also designed and painted the "Marana Tigers" with paw prints for the training room.

The Academic Decathlon team went to the Academic Decathlon district competition on Feb. 7. The team took ninth out of twenty three other schools. Certain team members placed in one of the subject quiz areas. Scott McMarrow took second in economics while Kym Fernandez placed third in grammar and literature. Superquiz was on the subject of the Constitution and Marana placed third. Terry Parish received the most valuable player trophy decided upon by the team members.

Seniors Derik Burr, Barney Holtzman, Larry Johnson and Susan Rushing received Silver Medal Awards from the Congressional Award ceremony held at the Westin La Paloma on Jan. 17.

Bronze Medal Awards were given to senior J.D. Blair, juniors Jenni Edwards, Veronica Federico, Michelle Miera and Davina Rudnick and sophomores Clint Carlton, Jeanine La Fond and Ann Meerdink.

Of the 24 awards given, twelve were won by Marana students. Each of the Marana students were involved in Key Club with Mr. Urquides as their advisor.

The awards were presented by Congressional representatives, Jim Kolbe and Morris Udall.

Qualifications for the Silver Medal Awards included persons must be between the ages of 17 and 20, have 200 hours of voluntary public service and 100 hours of both personal development activities and specific physical fitness.

Bronze Medalists needed to be 14 to 17 years old and earned 100 hours of voluntary public service and 50 hours from both personal development activities and specific physical fitness.

Tour Life

Tour life. What is it? Well, it is Marana High School and the life of its students. It is best friends walking across campus to class. It is lunchtime activities put on by various clubs. It is also the sports program. It is cheerleaders, mascots, the band, and everyone who contributes to school spirit. Mainly tour life is about the students at Marana and the life they lead while on and off campus.

Tour life encompassed every student at Marana. No group was excluded or favored. All groups got equal exposure and due to that students were able to pick and choose what group or groups they wanted to be involved with.

All in all, tour life is about you, the student at Marana High School. It encompassed everything done, said or thought and it captured the spirit of Marana High School.

Beyond Books

Students by day, fun-loving teenagers by night — Marana students moonlighted as ordinary teenagers at night after leading a normal student's life at school. They attended activities at school as well as different activities around town. There were football, basketball, baseball and various other games for the students who enjoyed watching athletic events. For the less athletically minded, there were drama productions, the musical and dinner theater. There were also band, jazz and choir concerts for those people who were musically minded.

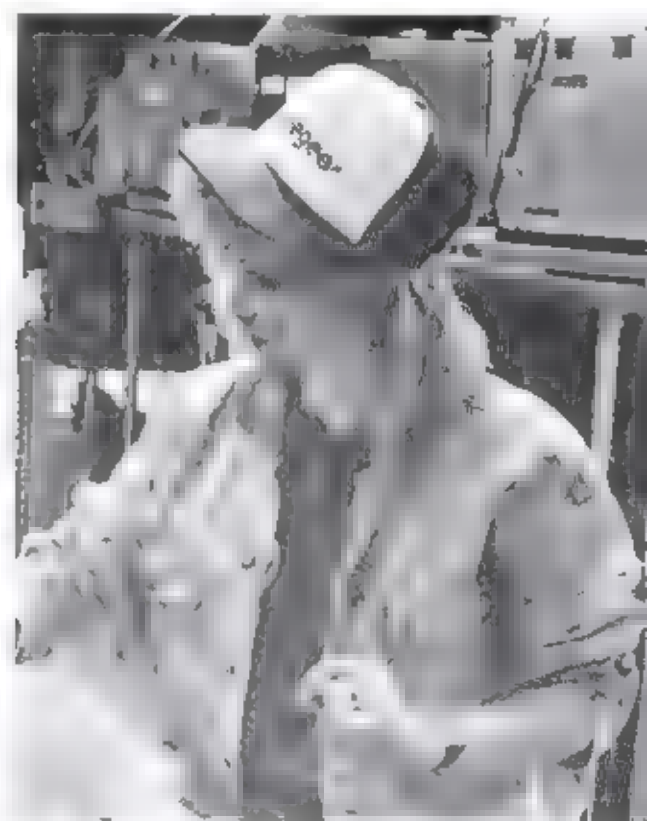

Many activities enjoyed were not school related. Concerts by various groups included Huey Lewis, Bon Jovi, The Jetts, Stryper and other bands. Students also saw various movies, among them "Top Gun" and "The Golden Child". Food even played a big role in students life — whether eating or serving. Basically students did what all teenagers do for fun means money makers and more. These Money Makers consisted of all the different clubs and organizations selling different products or doing different activities to make money. A lot went on this year thanks to all of these groups of people: Car washes, gummy bears, bake sales and of course M&M's. Ski Club, Key Club, and Model Legislature all sold M&M's to raise money for different reasons. Ski Club sold them to help pay for their ski trip in December. Key Club sold them for their Key Club activities held throughout the year. Last, Model Legislature sold M&M's to go to Phoenix.

— One Wild Game —

Donkeys and basketball are two things that are not usually associated with each other. However, Feb. 19 they came together in a fun-filled night of animal antics and basketball buffoonery.

Originally the game was to be played against Flowing Wells but it ended up being a class competition instead. In the first round, juniors played seniors and freshmen played sophomores. The seniors and sophomores won their games and advanced to the final round, where the sophomores defeated the seniors.

All in all the games provided an entertaining diversion for the students in the middle of the week as everyone made total donkeys of themselves.

Dave Richards uses food to persuade his donkey to move.

Freshman Steve Woolridge attempts to move his balky donkey back into the game as Brian Groseclose watches.

Council Activities

The Student Council was very enthusiastic and put a lot of thought and work into every activity they put on. The first thing Student Council organized was the freshman orientation. This was to welcome the freshmen and any new students at Marana.

They were in charge of Spirit Week and the activities held during that week. Spirit Week was a big success. A lot of people participated in the fun. Lunch activities were also a big hit with everyone, especially the egg drop. One person would lay on the ground with a cup in their mouth, and five of their classmates would try to drop the egg into the cup.

Some Student Council members went to Mountain View for a afternoon and presented them with $1000 to get them started. They also put on an activity for them and showed them what Marana's activities are like!

Academic Extras

Many clubs at Marana stress academics over physical ability. These include Model Legislature, Academic Decathlon, National Honor Society and Sophomore Auxiliary. Model Legislature is a group of students who got together and drafted bills. The sponsor, Mr. Dino Natta, helped the group prepare for a mock legislature in Phoenix in March of 1987. There the students joined other students from across the state and became legislators for the week-end.

Academic Decathlon, sponsored by Mrs. Mayhew, involved a competition in every subject of school, including math, history and music. The team gathered together in January to compete against other area schools.

Throughout high school, students strive to reach high goals. Two clubs that helped to reach these goals were National Honor Society and Sophomore Auxiliary. These clubs joined together to promote community service and leadership. Students who were involved in NHS and Sophomore Auxiliary has the opportunity to participate in such activities as an exchange with other NHS students from Iowa.

Pathways To Progress

The Key Club started off the year with the new theme, Understanding: Pathways to Progress. On its pathway to understanding, the Key Club participated in and orchestrated many service projects. The first project, a car wash to raise money for the many projects, started the year off with a blast. Despite an accidental need for a locksmith, the car wash came off smoothly. The path then led to the honorary members in the Key Club, the Special Education students. This was the first year they were able to join. The Key Club then took a needed rest by holding another Halloween party for the underprivileged children. As the Key Club capped off 1986, it provided many well-comed dinners for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

To begin 1987, the Key Club held its fourth annual Volleyball-a-thon. The money raised at this event went toward the Key Club's favorite project, the Special Olympics. Then as all good things do, the Key Club came to an end with the installation of new Key Club officers. They once again proved that the Key Club can be the saving grace for many people throughout the year. The Key Club was a good example of the spirit and pride at Marana

Members of the Key Club are (First row) Terri Mathis, Marcie O'Brien, Jenni Edwards, Veronica Federico, president; J.D. Entertainment Year Round

The Marana High Players provided a variety of Entertainment this year. Their first production was Night of January 16th. It was a realistic trial, performed all in a court room setting. It included a variety of characters, and a jury drawn from the audience. Their second production of the year was *M*A*S*H*. This play mostly covered the stay of Capt. Hawkeye Pierce and company at the M*A*S*H 4077th. In the spring the Players performed their annual musical all on a luxurious cruise ship. To end their season the Players hosted the annual dinner theater with an evening of one-act plays.

This year's musical was Anything Goes. It was a 1930's comedy performed

Besides performing four major productions the Players and Thespians found time to put on a haunted house at Desert Winds Elementary, create a living nativity scene for the christmas concert, initiate 22 new members into their Thespian Troupe, and attend the Arizona state Thespian conference in Phoenix and the Southern Arizona acting Festival, in Benson

Sing And Swing

Music was in the air when Choir and Jazz performed. Choir had performed at the Christmas concert, the Mayfest concert and held a concert of their own at Northwest Hospital for its staff party. They had two major fundraisers in which they sold cheese and sausage combinations, then candy.

Jazz hit it off with a big schedule. Several of their performances were held on campus including the Fall concert, the Commons concert, their annual Christmas concert, and a concert for the parents that came to the Open House. They went on the road for the Mayfest program and a competition at Northern Arizona University's Jazz Festival. Several junior highs were visited by the Jazz Band in order to promote music in the younger students.

Senior trombone player, John Duke, said, "This year's Jazz Band is probably the best Marana has seen." He also felt that some of their success was due to the support from students and parents of Marana and thanked all the people who attended their concerts.

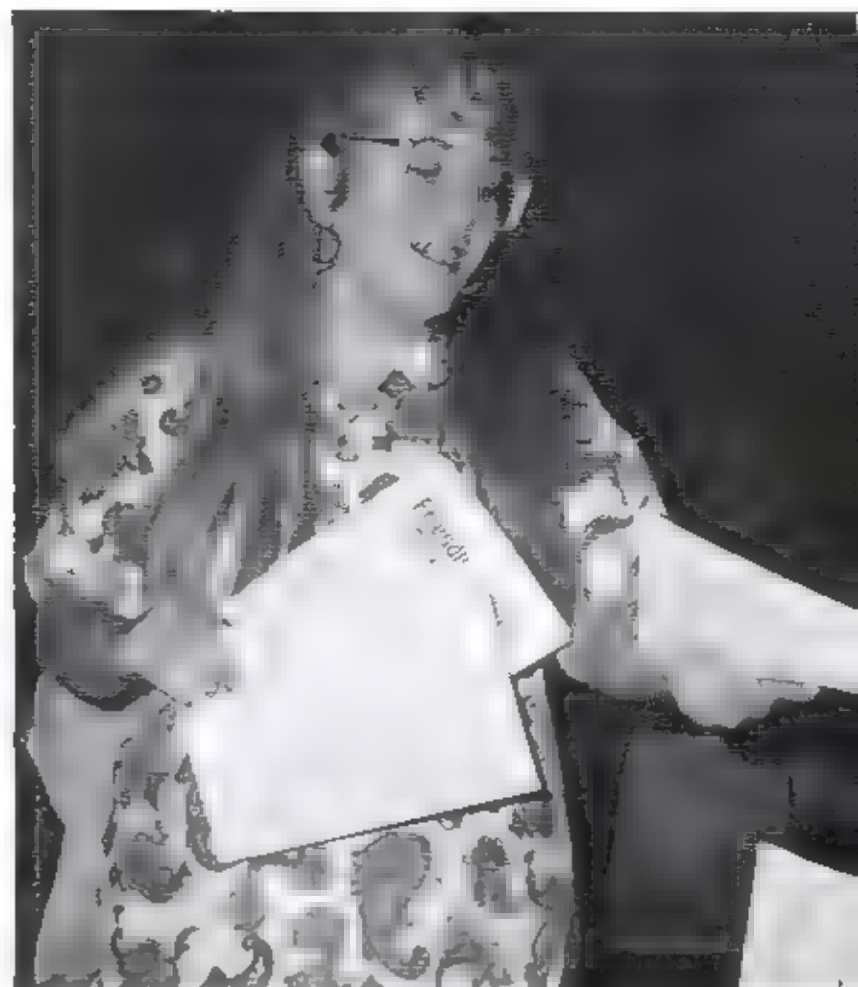

The Choir Members are (First row) Diane Culton, Michelle Prichard, Tammy Chelberg, Laura Yarter, June Newton, Mark Catt, Maria Malkentzos, Shane Ammon, Trisha Triebnig, Tammy Tapp, Suraya Dimmick and Cindy Richards. Superior Sounds

The Marana Tiger Marching Band proved it was a force to be reckoned with. For the first time in Marana's history, the Tiger Marching Band received a superior rating at the Flowing Wells Invitational on Nov. 8. Along with the Flowing Wells Invitational, the band also performed at the University of Arizona Band Day and the State Marching Festival, they received excellent ratings at both competitions.

While first semester the band is mainly concentrated on marching, second semester the band turned to concert material. The physical activity of marching band was put aside for the difficult rhythms and correct postures of concert season. The band performed at many concerts throughout the season, including the Christmas concert, spring concert and a performance at the Regional Band Festival at which the band performed for a grade. Money posed a slight problem for the band, so to compensate for the financial need, many fundraisers were attempted. The fundraisers included a soap sale, a cheese and sausage sale and the second Raffle-Off The-Band where the band members sold raffle tickets. The tickets were put into a drawing, with the winner of the drawing receiving a free concert from the band.

This season was brightened by a bit of great news, after about ten years the band finally got new uniforms for the 1987-88 season. These uniforms were more than welcomed by all the students, and will make the band look even better for next year.

Members of the band are (First row) Dawn Simpson, Michelle Hoskins and Billie Gievers. With The Beat

Spirit prevailed during the 1986-87 school year with the help of the Marana songleaders, flags and mascots

Songleaders and the flags joined the Marana marching band during their performances at football games as well as competitions. At the Flowing Wells Invitational and the State Marching Festival, the flags and songleaders received the captain award for outstanding auxiliary, a first for both these groups. In addition to performing with the band, the songleaders helped the varsity cheerleaders lead cheers during football games, basketball games and pep assemblies. The flags also performed their own original routines at pep assemblies. The mascots were always around to spread school spirit. At football games, pep assemblies and almost all school functions, the mascots roused spirit in everyone. Led by their faithful leader, Tyler, the mascots joined with the other pep squad members to spur Marana High teams to victory.

These groups helped to lead MHS students to a greater sense of pride in their school

Spirit Guides

Go, Tigers, go! was a common chant heard from both the cheerleaders and the matmaids throughout the year. The spirit demonstrated by these groups proved to be beneficial to both the individual teams and the school in general.

There were seven varsity, seven junior varsity, and five freshman cheerleaders. The girls spent their time cheering for both football and basketball. Often cheering twice a week during "hoop" season, proved hectic. Games were on Tuesday and Friday near the end of the season, much to the girls' relief. In spite of the hectic schedule and grueling routine, the cheerleaders managed to get lots of spirit going at the games and this helped the Tigers to win many victories.

Cheering the wrestlers on to victory, the eight Matmaids and Ms. Kelley, the "Matmaid Momma" contributed much spirit to the wrestling season. The girls averaged cheering at one match a week with occasional matches on Saturdays. The three-month long season proved to be tiring but exciting and all the matmaids enjoyed being on the squad and contributing to school spirit.

With Sports On Their Minds

Ski Club and V Club were two of the most fun clubs available at Marana. Having a good time or making sure that others had fun were the main goals of these clubs.

Ski club, in its first year, was a big success. The students raised the money they needed through various fund-raisers. Some of their fund-raisers included selling M & M's, car washes and a slave sale. All their hard work paid off during Christmas break as the club found themselves on the slopes of Apache Sunrise Ski Resort.

V-Club, which has been a part of Marana for many years, returned once again to boost school spirit. Parents Night proved to be a big success and displayed the hard work of many members. V Club was also instrumental in putting up various posters promoting upcoming games and events.

Overall both clubs had successful school years filled fun and excitement.

Headed For Work

Many students were exposed to the business world whether they were actually working part-time during the day or perfecting their skills at school, members of these several groups gained knowledge about the skills needed for a successful career. Future Business Leaders of America held various fund raisers including the candy store. Three competitions were attended during the year to give members a chance to use the business skills they learned. Diversified Cooperative Education was a work-study program that involved seniors. Members, sometimes joined by guest speakers, met once a week to discuss their job progress and the world of work.

Future Farmers of America (FFA) proved once again to be an important addition to the school's curriculum, educating students in farming, public speaking and leadership.

Vocational Foods was taught to teach students how to run a restaurant and how to plan, prepare and serve food. The members had a chance to use their culinary skills on Thursday at Casa Del Tigre, which was open to students and faculty.

Checking On Each Other

Several groups got together to socialize and support one another.

Together as one! The 1986-87 Bible Club was just that. Whether they were supporting a peer at a football game or helping a friend through a hard time, they stuck together.

The Bible Club met every Thursday. At their meetings they'd socialize, have an opening prayer and then a student would discuss a problem or something that they learned that week.

It's your move! During lunch the Chess Club got together to do their thing, play chess! There were two divisions in the Chess Club. The first division was made up of all the people who compete as a team or as individuals. The second division was the actual club, these are the people who come in at lunch to play chess for fun.

Peer counselors were an important part of Marana. They were there for students to talk to. Being a Peer Counselor wasn't always easy, they had to be able to listen and be interested. Another thing Peer Counselors did was show new students around campus, helped the Freshmen choose the right classes, and took part in the seatbelt campaign.

Frustration! The 1986-87 yearbook class could easily define, through experience, this word. Over and over they've had to rewrite and recopy the sections they designed. Deadlines were required in order to get the yearbook out in time. To make the deadline took a lot of hard work.

Yearbook members should have creative ideas and should be dedicated to their work. They should also have an open mind and be able to accept others ideas. The 1986-87 yearbook class had all of the above.

Photographers for yearbook were always on the go, looking for interesting or exciting events going on around the school.

Staff member Debbie Rintala said that yearbook was fun to be involved with, but it took a great deal of work and it also took up a lot of spare time.

Sponsor, Ms. Ludeke said that this staff fought deadlines all year long. They were completely inexperienced, but stuck with the book all the way.

The Sense of Academics

Marana Creates Ample Sounds

Marana "sounds" off to the 1986-87 year of music. There are three major types of music classes students could of enrolled in. One being Jazz Band. These students did lunch and activity hour concerts. The second choice was the well known voices that rang through Marana. This group was named as the chorus connection. Finally the the third choice was the Marana High School "Tiger" Band. This year the band broke two records. The first one was the superior that Marana Band recieved at the Flowing Wells Invitational. It was the first superior ever recieved by the band. To recieve that superior they took first place in music awards, first place in general effects, first place in auxilliary and tied for third place with Kingman in marching. The second record was broken when Marana Band recieved their first excellent at State Marching Festival. The songs they played to receive their superior and their excellent were: Durango, Scream Machine, Blues in the night,

Academic Scents and Tastes

Smells bring food for thought

Marana realized it had had taste, when it came to smell. Most of the students that were interested in those two subjects enrolled in foods classes. As they advanced to vocational food or food service, they obtained the privilege of Casa Del Tigre worker.

All the proceeds go to the classes fund. Basically the foods program was to teach students the necessities in running a food business. These classes also cover at home jobs besides a career. Ms. Johnson stressed the fact your mother won't be with you all the time.

Chemistry was one of the major smells of all the science and chemistry classes this year. One of the hardest Chemistry Labs was the Gravimetric Sulphate Lab. Mr. Brady taught most of the Chemistry classes, while Mr. Hayhurst taught one class.

You might have thought that FBLA has nothing to do with foods — well you were wrong. FBLA operates a candy store everyday at break. FBLA also put out Turkey Grams this year. Most of the credit goes to the FBLA sponsor, Ms. Cason.

Sights Touch Senses

Hands on, vision build minds

The experience of touch and sight occurred in classes at Marana. For touch we had ceramics classes as an example. Students learned how to make pottery from scratch. Student Council class had a lot of "touch" in it, such as the event of putting up the daily events on a marquis. Word processing was a class that took a lot of skill for keyboarding. Sights were seen throughout the school year. Such as Marana's pom poms. One familiar sight was a classroom setting of girls and guys gossiping, instead of working

Some people thought all academic classes were hard and had to do with English, math, science, civics or what not. At Marana that theory was proven wrong. Marana choice courses to name a few, consist of girls and boys basketball class, Student Council class, yearbook, newspaper publication, song leaders, flags, band, choir, and many, many more People opened their eyes this year and learned new skills through academics. As everybody made a lot of new friends and shared academic interests.

Using Good Sense

Sensibility takes charge

Good sense was something students needed a lot of. Whether it was studying, eating or just having, the students needed good sense in all their pursuits.

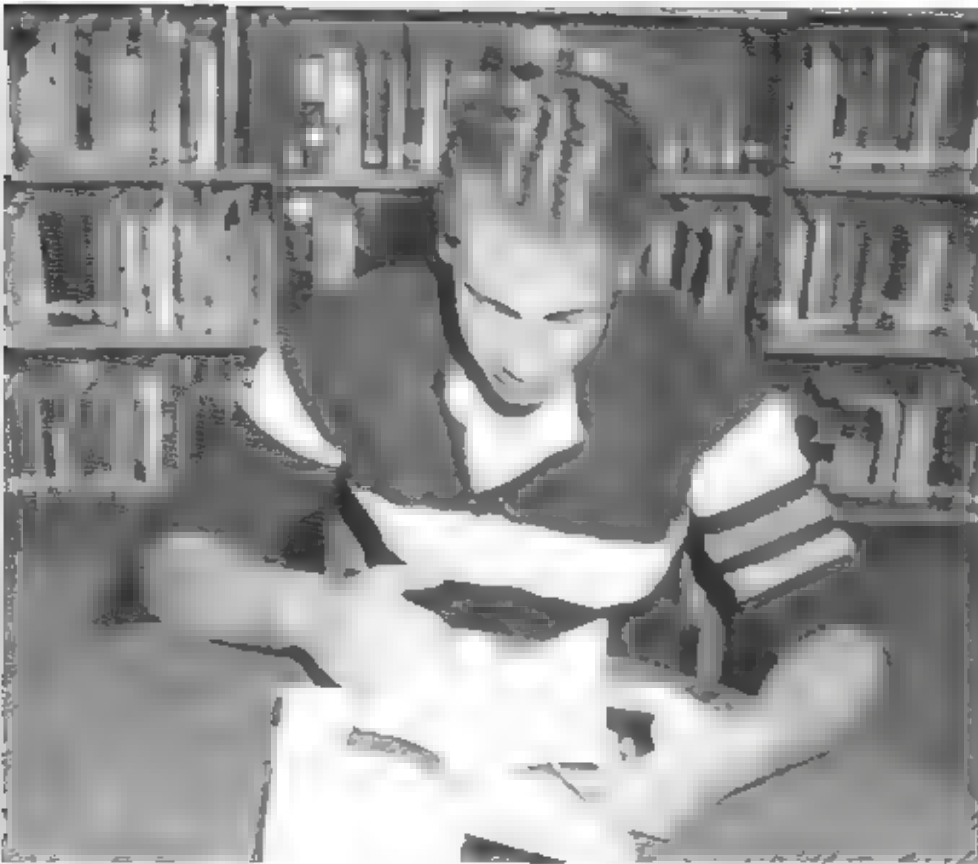

Many students found that while studying made good sense, it was often more of a chore than they wanted to handle. However, when students gave into their better side and did the studying, grades improved.

Students also used good sense in eating with many taking foods classes which taught them the value of eating nutritious food and taking care of their bodies. Students took foods classes not only to enjoy themselves, they also took them so they could gain some practice in life-long skills

Finally, many students used good sense in having fun. While they might not change the type or amount of fun, they did use some common sense when it came to picking the activities.

All in all students found that using good sense helped them survive high school

Ms. Johnson uses good sense by using a word processor for loads

Making Sense of It All

Skills build on basics

Marana High School was full of good sense in this past year. Students got great feeling when they turned in that A or B paper for English. Students also got bad feelings from that flunked 20th Century History quiz. One problem some students also had was that extra curricular activities interfered with their grade-point averages.

As this past years Senior Class went onto college, work or whatever they chose, they remembered what they had learned. As for the freshmen, sophomores and juniors, good sense will be with them the rest of their high school years.

In college, it will be highly necessary to use those five senses. But more importantly to know the basics to apply to college-required classes, as well as elective classes. As students learned, preparation for college was granted through high school. They picked up other necessary skills that will help them in life, whether they choose a college or not

A Class Act

The Junior Class played a vital role in shaping the 1986-87 school year. For many juniors, their third year of high school was the one in which they found the activity best suited to their interests. Many of them were helpful in the growth of different clubs on campus.

In sports juniors either continued to pursue a sport in which they had been involved before or went in an entirely new direction and picked a different sport in which to excel. Many of them found more responsibility placed on their shoulders as they moved up to varsity.

All junior interests were not geared to school activities alone. Many eighty-eighters had part-time jobs. They found that working was very time-consuming. With clubs, homework, employment, and a good times, the juniors had a very hectic and involved schedule during 1986-87.

Despite the fact that the class of 1988 went in different directions and spent their time in a variety of ways, the juniors displayed a remarkable amount of school spirit and class dedication. They pulled together to transform the school year into a true "class act."

Females take charge! The Junior Class officers are (First row) Brenda Corbiere, treasurer; Angela Goodwin, representative; Marcy Hagmaier, representative; and Davina Rudnick, president (Second row) Teri Hayhurst, vice president, and Ami Mittenberger, secretary

From organizing the alumni reception at Homecoming, to putting on a super prom, the Junior Class officers were successful in whatever they did. By involving as many students as possible, the girls were able to raise a lot of spirit and participation in the class.

Several of the officers attended a Student Council workshop at the University of Arizona during the summer of 1986. These classes gave them some great ideas and developed their leadership skills.

Davina Rudnick, Junior Class president, summed up her feelings about the workshop by commenting on how much she had learned. "Think wisely, stay positive, and remember to communicate with others instead of keeping your thoughts locked up inside," were key points presented to those attending. She stressed communication as being very important to herself and the other officers.

It was this attitude plus class cooperation that made this past year such a success for the Junior Class.

Buckle Up For Amanda

Marana High was grieved by the death of junior Amanda Cameron on Sept. 10, 1986. Amanda was thrown from the car she was in and fatally injured in a seven car pile-up that injured 13 other students. Amanda was not wearing her seat belt.

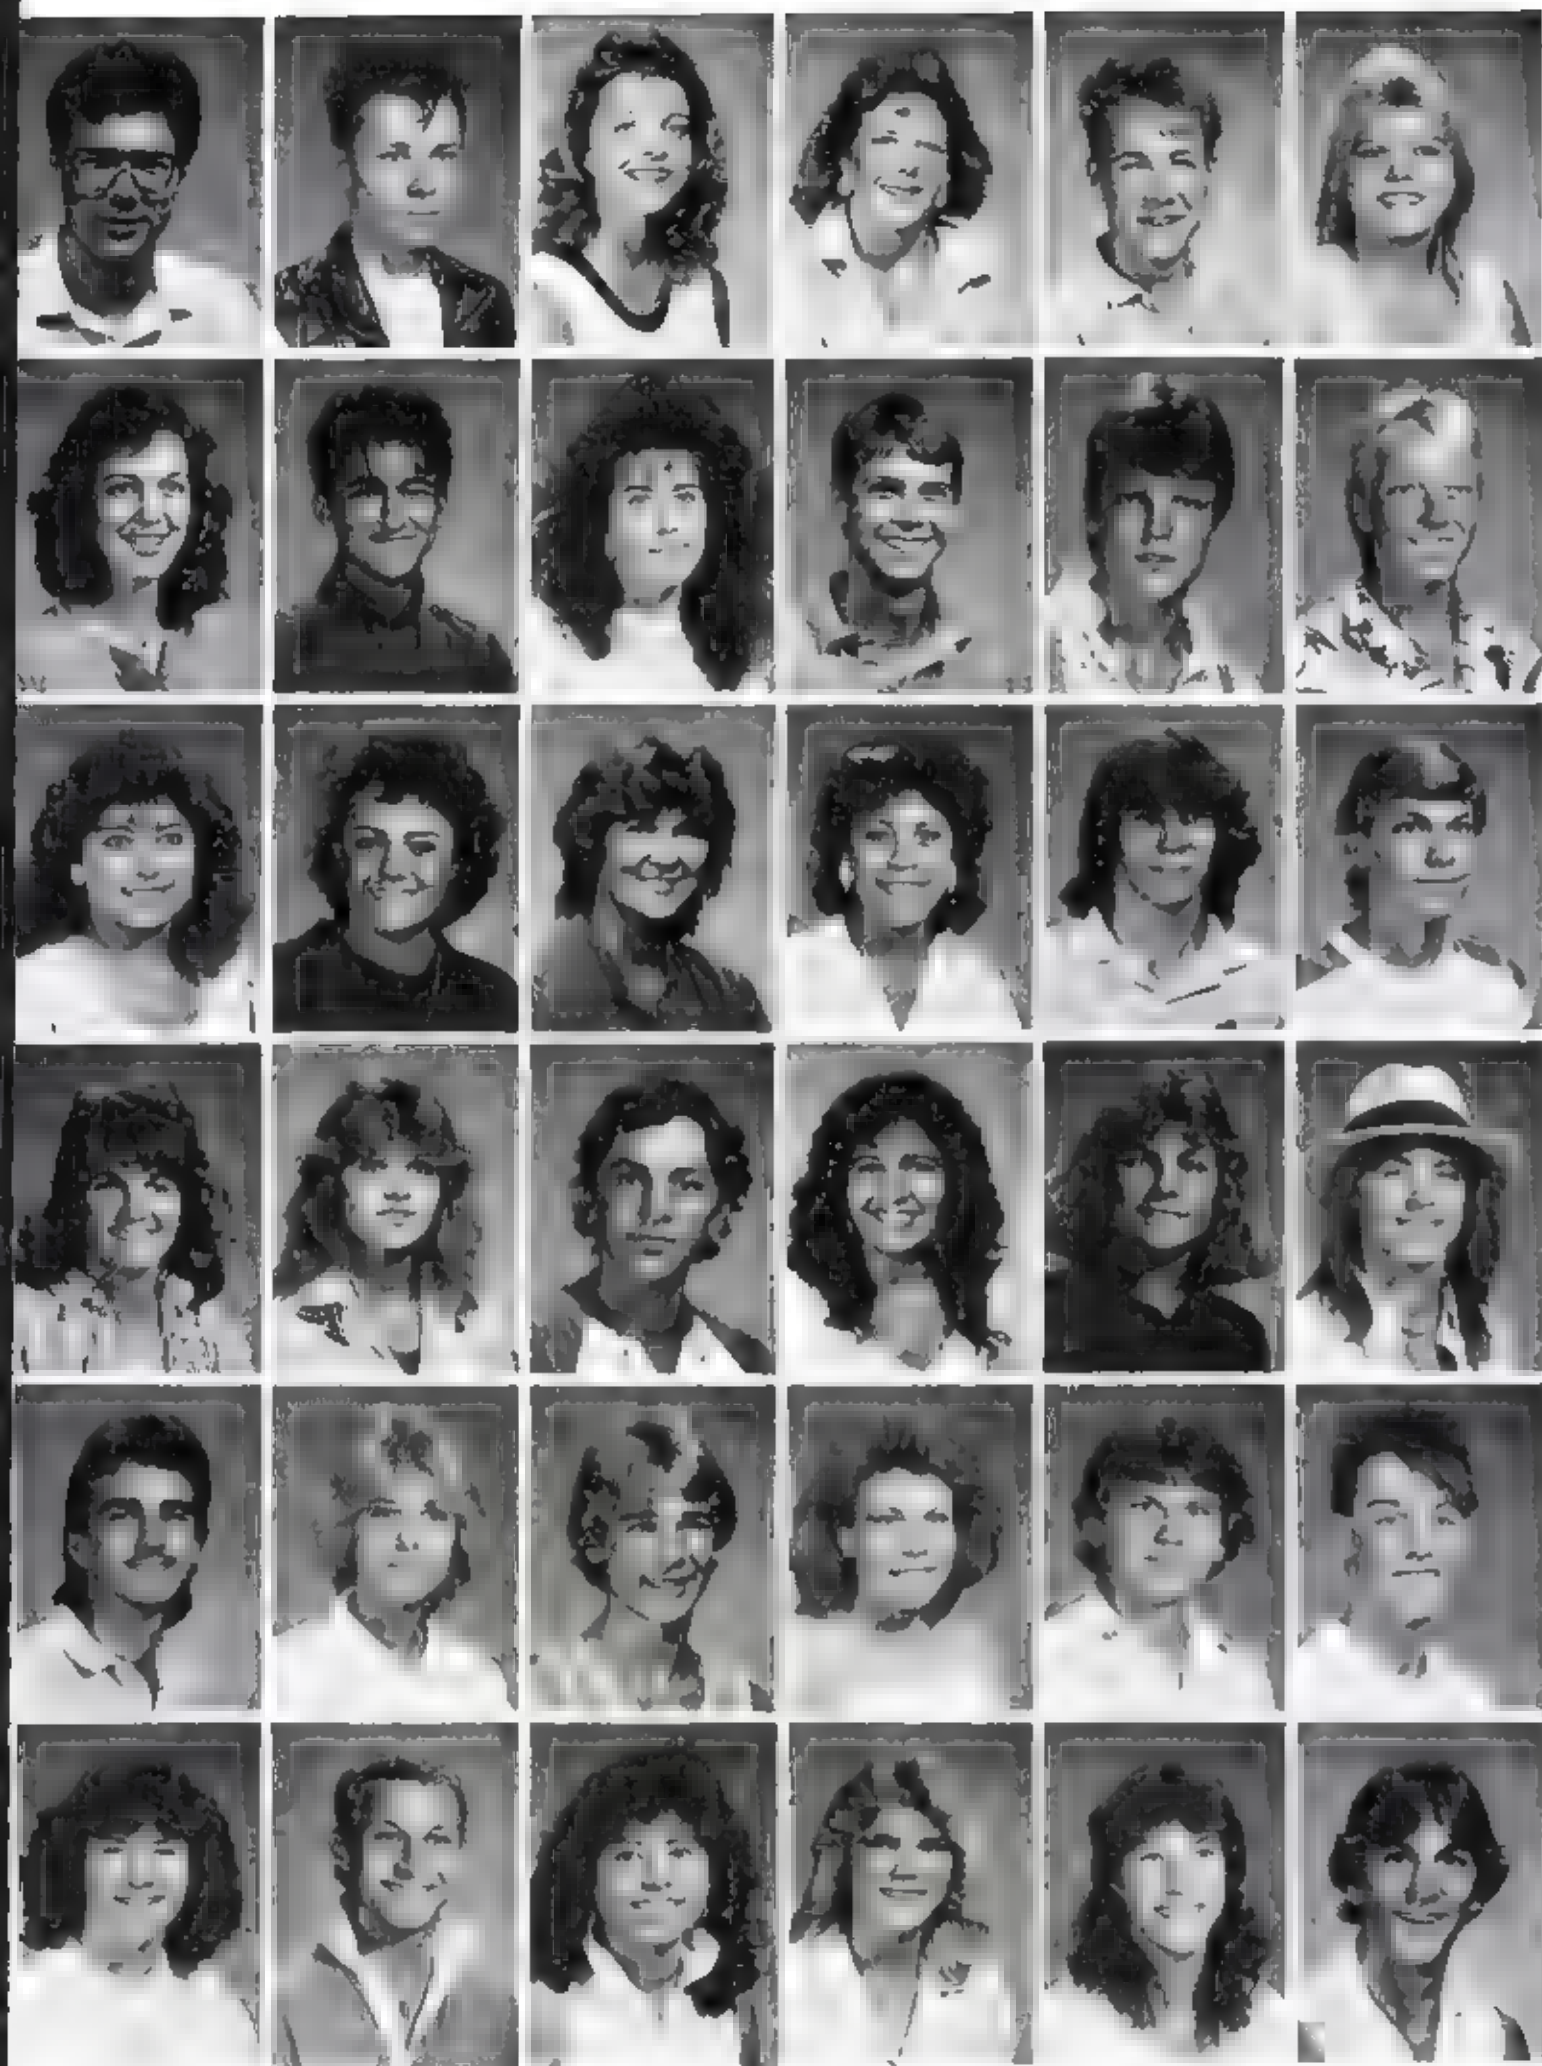

As a result of the accident, students started a "Buckle Up for Amanda" campaign to encourage each other to wear their seat belts. The Student Council helped supply the student body with 1000 buttons bearing the "Buckle Up for Amanda" logo. Close friends of Amanda raised $160 in a car wash to buy bumper stickers bearing the same logo. Student Council then matched these funds and the bumper stickers were ordered. The bumper stickers were handed out on Nov. 7, 1986 to students wearing their seatbelts. Due to Amanda's death the students at Marana have become more conscientious about wearing seatbelts.

Ms. Kelley a teacher at Marana, gives Jennifer Hum a "Buckle Up For Amanda" bumper sticker. The stickers, handed out on the corner of Emigh and Sandario, were just part of the campaign to encourage students to use their seat belts. They were designed by two students, William Barry and Ken Houdek.

Lots Of Class

The sophomores of Marana High School were very energetic this year because they were the largest class and had many students who enjoyed participating in school activities. Consisting of approximately 465 students, they added to the school spirit and enthusiasm around the school campus.

With the help of their sponsors, Ms. Roth and Mr. Korte, they completed many projects for the year. One of their biggest accomplishments was the homecoming cars and balloons. This seemed to be a big hit with the fans and classmates. Another one of their accomplishments was the Parents' Night float. This float received good recognition and the crowd seemed pleased with its appearance.

This year's sophomores were much different not only because of their large size of the class, but also because of their supportive attitudes towards the school. There was some pretty interesting answers when a few of the students were asked what they thought of their Sophomore Class. Sophomores Julie Elias and Lisa Salvucci responded to that question by saying the sophomores "have a lot of spirit and energy sophomores jam!" In conclusion, this Sophomore Class seemed to be at its best.

In A Class By Themselves

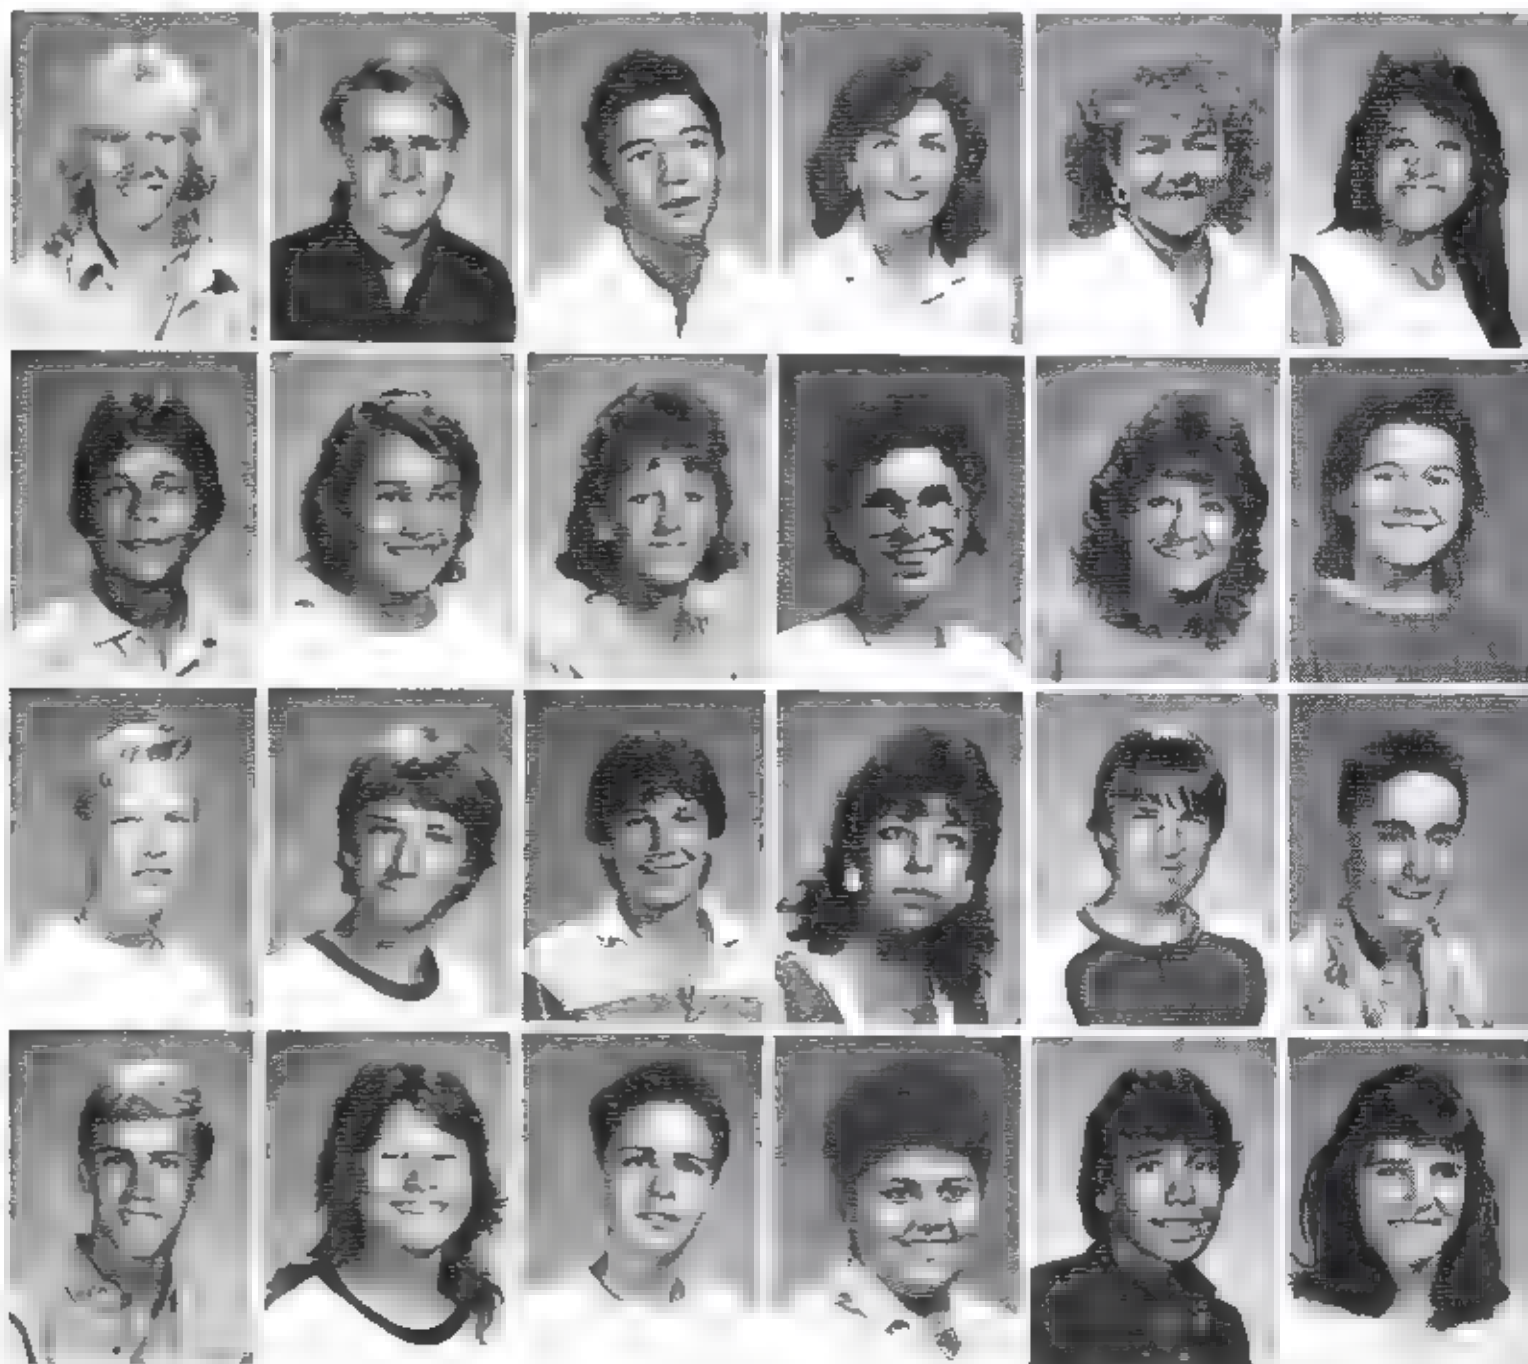

Rivalry! The class of 1990 is the first class of Marana High School to have an in-district competitor, Mountain View, the Thornydale-area high school. As the freshmen here at Marana proceed through their high school years Mountain View will be right there with them.

These new rivals, Mountain View, can also be allies. The freshman Student Council spent a day at Marana adding more enthusiasm to a spirit rally.

Marana's freshmen started their first day with an orientation in the auditorium. After meeting the upper class Student Council officers, they charged out to complete the day.

The freshmen adapted well to their new environment by becoming involved in activities. Some of the activities they were most interested in joining were Key Club, Student Council, sports and Cheerleading. They excelled in each of these areas.

The Freshman Class set four goals to achieve this year. The first goal was to do a good job at the Homecoming football game. Then onward to raise $500 through different fundraisers. The next goal was to have an idealistic float at the Parent's Night football game. The final achievement they want was to have an outstanding Holiday dance in December.

Spirit! Freshman Class members proved themselves to have plenty of enthusiasm by participating in activities during the year and Amy Foster brought the freshman lots of spirit. She also helped them feel better about being brand new to Marana High School and gain confidence that they'll need when they become seniors and want to carry on many of the traditions Marana has had for a long time.

Administration

A Classy Group Of Teachers

Imagine a school without teachers. "Pretty cool," most students would first think. There would be no rules, no getting into trouble, no assignments, and no tests. But as the days went on, teenagers would finally realize just how important teachers really are. People wouldn't know much more than the alphabet without teachers! Many people wouldn't be able to get a job, drive, watch movies and understand them (or even find out when and where they were playing), or write letters. The only communication people would have would be word of mouth. "Impossible!" one might say? Maybe not at first, but year after year more people would become illiterate.

After students finally realize how important teachers are, they may not appreciate the way they are taught. In the old days, school consisted of a book, pencil, and paper. Students now have movies, computers, games, filmstrips, guest speakers, student-teachers, and simulations to learn from.

So next time you're sitting in English, bored out of your mind — think how important that teacher really is!

Career Day, peer counseling, and Advisory period were some of the projects counselors Kim Holaway and Perry Sublette presented.

Career Day allowed students to choose six careers they were interested in. They listened to information given by a professional in those subjects.

Peer counselors were trained students who helped other students with personal problems. Advisory Period involved trained teachers acting as counselors for students who had problems deciding what electives to take for the following year. This was helpful for the students because they received more personalized attention.

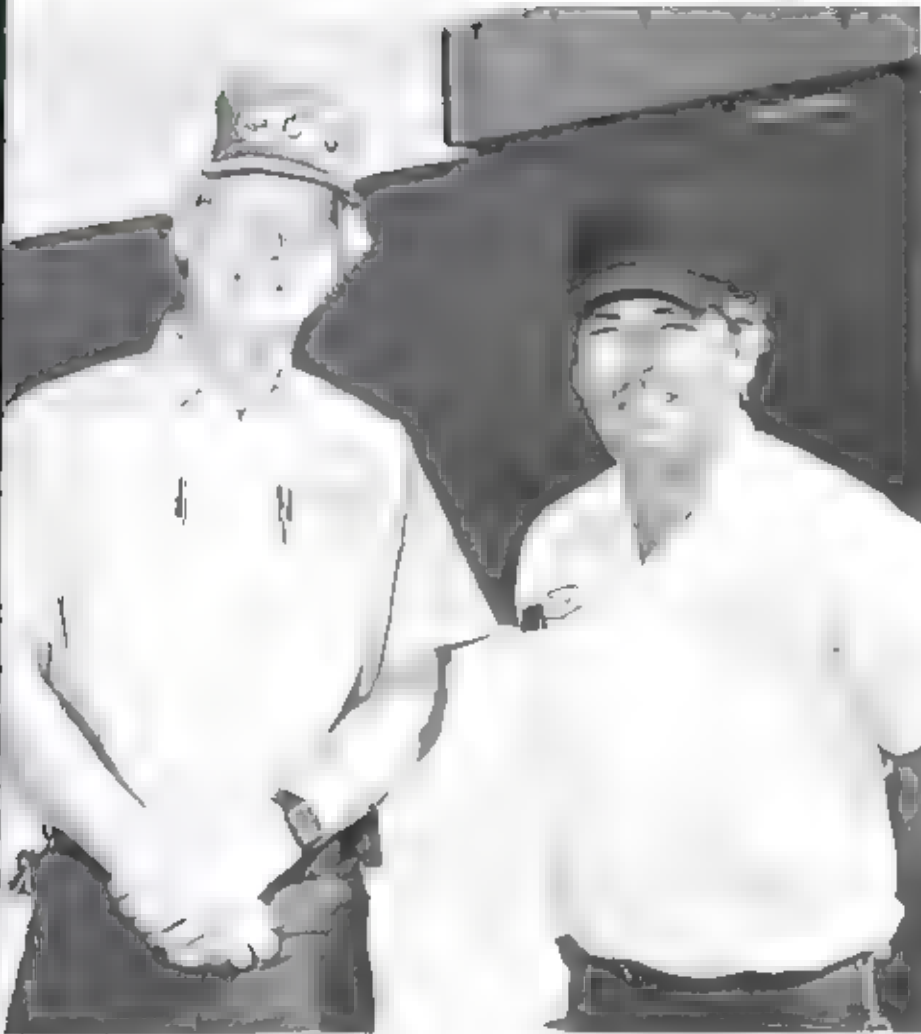

New teachers second semester are Mr. Sorenson, Marana's teacher in a new trial alternative education program and Ms. Roggeman, who teaches English. Ms. Kelly, not shown, a new teacher, joined the staff in science and math.

Lupe Gozum and Tony Esparza, Marana's hall monitors, check students for red IDs when they cross the street and turn people in if they suspect ditching.

Leroy Smith and Manny Murrietta are the custodial staff for the high school. They make sure the campus is clean — and they do a great job!

One win and nine losses was the record at the end of the season for the varsity football team. Although Marana only won one game, the football players tried hard during every game. The one victory was over Palo Verde. With the score of twenty-seven points for Marana and three points for Palo Verde, the game was a definite victory. By the end of the season there was a total of 115 points scored by Marana and 275 points scored against Marana.

Even though Coach Hayhurst was disappointed with the overall record, he said that the players were a group of fine young men. There were a lot of good football players on the team but many of them are graduating. Marana is looking forward to the Junior Varsity football players and a few freshman football players that are being moved up next year.

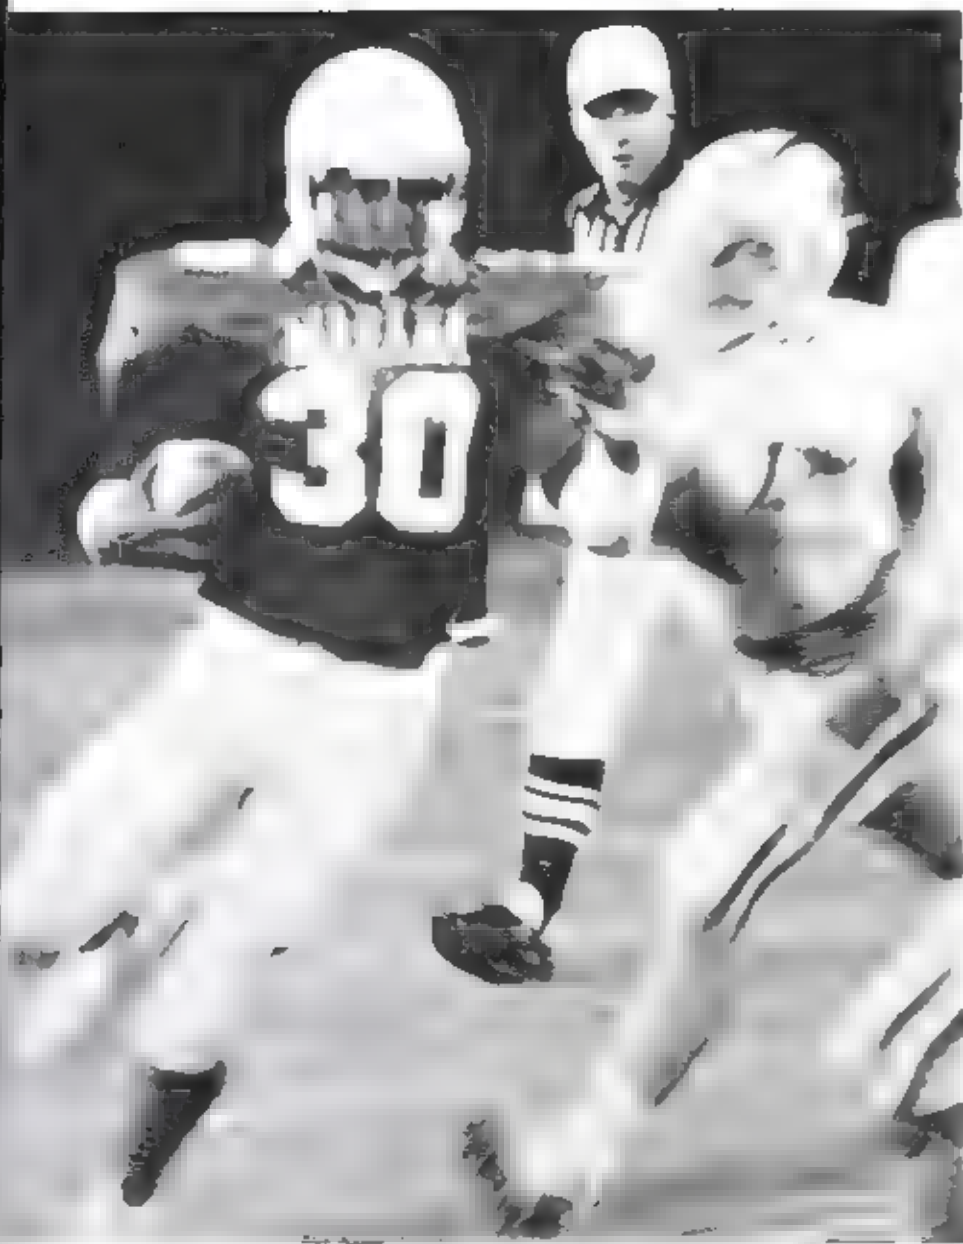

During the season, many of the varsity football players were mentioned in the newspaper. Their names were mentioned for yardage, tackles, and more. To sum the season up, it was basically good, but the players and coaches went through a lot of hardships.

AAA serves up tough competition

The volleyball season was considered 'a stepping stone toward a strong season next year' by Coach Caro, who said that this year was for building on qualities to prepare for future competition. Varsity ended the season with a two win and thirteen loss record. Junior Varsity concluded their season with one win and thirteen losses. The freshman team finished with the best socre of the three teams, eleven wins and three losses.

Two varsity players are leaving Marana due to graduation, captain of the varsity team Marleen Perry and Libby Hickman. The varsity has three catagories to which awards come from. The Most Valuable Player award went to Olivia Villa. Pam Kunckel received the Most Improved Player award. The title of Team Leader was presented to Marleen Perry. The Junior Varsity's Most Valuable Player was Susan Deily. Bonnye Neely was awarded the Freshman's Hardest Worker award.

Almost every game varsity played, they won one of the three matches required to win the game. The most difficult team they faced was Rincon High. It was a fight to the end, only to result in Marana's loss.

On November 2, volleyball he held a car wash at Carl's Jr. on the corner of Ina and Thornydale. Each player set out to get sponsors to pay per car washed. By the end of day, a hundred vehicles had been washed. The wash itself cost $2 per car. They raised a little over $700. The money collected was used to buy new uniform tops to which each player can keep.

Cross Country trails seem mostly rocky

Members of the girls' cross country team are Ann Meerdink, Davina Rudnick, Jenni Kirkley, Claire DesRosiers, Megan Ungermann and Kim Dupont

Members of the Boys' Cross Country team are Sam Wright (manager), Jose Pizano, Johnny Maudlin, Todd Wright, L.J. Perry, and Logan Trujillo

Joined by new members, the '86-'87 cross country team had only eight returning runners. This, plus the fact that only two of the runners were seniors, put the team at a definite disadvantage.

However, the dedication of the members, combined with Joe Brady's coaching skill, placed the girls' team seventh in divisionals, while the boys took eighth. Ann Meerdink, who qualified for state, was not able to attend the meet because of a state band competition the same day.

The team practiced daily and attended meets once a week. The runners had half of their meets away, traveling to the Pima College course a total of three times to compete. At home meets, the Panther Peak course was used. More than once, the girls' team had to forfeit because of a shortage of runners.

One of the team's favorite places to run during practice was Bajada, a hilly path in the Saguaro National Monument. Some of the other practices were spent doing intervals, which were short distance runs repeated up to six times to build up the speed necessary for passing other runners during competition.

Hopefully the experience gained this past year will be beneficial to next year's runners.

Marana welcomed the addition of a golf team and an athletic training program. The golf team, coached by Mr. Dyer, had a very good season despite this being the first year for the team. Many players, such as Tim Brunenkant and Jeb Braeutigam, turned in successful scores to lead the team to a good record. At the end of the season, the golf team participated in the AAA II regionals at Arthur Pack and placed second in the con-

Also new to Marana was an athletic training program. Ms. Babeu, trainer for all MHS sports teams, was in charge of the program. Students were taught basic first aid and how to end to serious sports injuries Injuries didn't stop the varsity Tigers, but inconsistency did. Coach Joe Acker felt that the team's inconsistency and attitude helped to bring times of defeat.

Rincon and Palo Verde were considered the varsity's toughest competition. Tommy Halton was the Tiger's high scorer, but as Coach Acker explained, "Each player is part of the team. We have a team that works together, not individually."

When senior varsity player, Larry Johnson, was asked about his feelings of the season, he replied, "We had a good chance to take at least third in the divisionals." Of the thirteen players, ten will graduate.

Junior varsity and freshman basketball took to the courts under the direction of Coach Brian Johnson and Coach Joe Acker.

"Best group of young men I've worked with yet and I'm proud of them", said J.V. coach Johnson, who was pleased with the improvement of the team. Coach Johnson believed that if they continued to work together as a team, they could possibly contend for next year's conference title.

Coach Acker, who hadn't worked with a freshmen team for almost 20 years, had an almost perfect season. He laid down a foundation on which the freshmen could build their fundamental skills and listening habits. This, he said, would help in future years not only in basketball, but academics.

The Marana varsity wrestling team had a good season this year despite various injuries to the players. The team participated in many different wrestling invitational this year, beyond their regular season matches

The Tigers did make it to state this season and Junior Manual Corral took second place in his individual weight class. The team overall earned the place of fourteenth out of thirty qualifying teams

The success of their season can be attributed to the more experienced team members helping and teaching the younger players, and also the dedication and improvement put in by all the team members.

JV Wrestlers work on Technique-Building

This wrestling season, there was not a freshman team. Instead the freshmen played for the junior varsity team. These wrestlers learned to put ability into their various wrestling moves. Sophomore wrestler Todd Parish explained, "This season was a learning session. We learned to put everything into the right moves." Todd and many other wrestlers felt that the Douglas Bulldogs were their toughest competition, to which Marana took the loss, but learned a lot from it

Ms. Babeu helps Sandy Ellison bandage her knee before a game

Varsity Softball captured the Divisional Title and were the only team in Division one or two to be undefeated in regular season play. Their all around record is 19 - 4

In pre-season the girls lost 9 - 1 and didn't think the season was going to be a good one, but went to the Thanksgiving tournament and were 2-2, beating CDO in the opener.

In seasonal play the Tigers opened with a 10-0 win against Flowing Wells. It was all easy sailing from there on in. In the middle of the season the team beat Rincon for first place, 10-3. This gave the Tigers the confidence necessary to beat the rest of their competition.

By the end of the season the team was 16-0 in conference play. They entered the Divisional Tournament and came away with the championship trophy. They lost in the opening round of State to Tolleson

This is Coach Sloans last year at MHS. She has done so much for the girls' team with her support, spirit, and most of all her coaching. Her record in four years of coaching at MHS she has 57 wins and 24 losses

Michelle Johnson pitches a strike, while the team stays ready

The junior varsity softball team had an exceptionally good season. Even though the record was 8 wins and 9 losses, they had a lot of fun. Under new coach, Melissa Caro, the team consisted of 14 members, one junior, nine sophomores, and four freshmen.

Their pitcher, Michelle Johnson, did an excellent job and will be pitching for the varsity team next year.

Ms. Caro said, "I'm looking forward to working with this group next year as they continue to expand with their knowledge of softball. I believe that the varsity team will benefit from this young talent."

Four different people from the team were recognized for certain qualities. Susan Deily and Gianna Duncan were chosen for most improved players, Barb Mattson was picked for the golden glove, and Michelle Johnson was picked for the golden bat.

Girls Basketball breaks for State's Top

Girls' basketball started the season off with a bang! They got ahead of other teams because of their basketball class, taught by Mr. Dyer who also coaches the girls' varsity team. Mr. Dyer felt that having the class gave the team the opportunity to be 25% better than their opponents. Marana is the only school in Southern Arizona to have a basketball class, so they have a jump on the other team.

Mr. Dyer felt that the season would start off slow, but due to talent, they had a good chance of being successful.

According to Mr. Dyer, the 1986-87 girls' basketball team was better than last year's team. He also felt that this year the girls would rank higher in state. Mr. Dyer's goal for the team was for the team to make it to state and win!

Baseball Coach aims for State Playoffs

Five overall returning players, including two starters from the previous season, assisted Coach Hummel in his first year coaching varsity baseball at MHS. In the recent past, Hummel has worked with several of these players in Little League, at Marana Junior High and coached last year's freshman team. This added to the relationship of the team as a whole. Striving to reach State playoffs, Coach Hummel said, "If hard work pays off, the team should have a successful year."

The junior varsity and freshman baseball teams had new coaches this year. With this, they worked hard with new hope to achieve winning seasons.

Second AAA Track Season opens with a bang

L.J. Perry leads Jose Pizano, Jason Preiser and Jeb Braeutigam through 'stadiums', a stamina exercise

The track team entered its second year of AAA competition with two new coaches and a number of new runners. Mr. Cotter and Mr. March worked together with returning Coach Brady to develop a strong team. All three coaches put a lot of time into after-school practices, guiding the runners through a variety of drills and skills to perfect technique.

There were a total of seven meets, three of them taking place at Marana. Along with the regular meets, there were also invitationals and finals. Students and parents came out to watch the meets, spurring the runners on.

Each runner was allowed to compete in up to four events. Besides running, there were pole vaulting and long jump events. Discus and shotput captured the interest of some other track members. All in all, the team pulled together to make the season a good one.

Tennis takes aim at Division II Title

Jeanine LaFond shows true determination as she stretches for a forehand

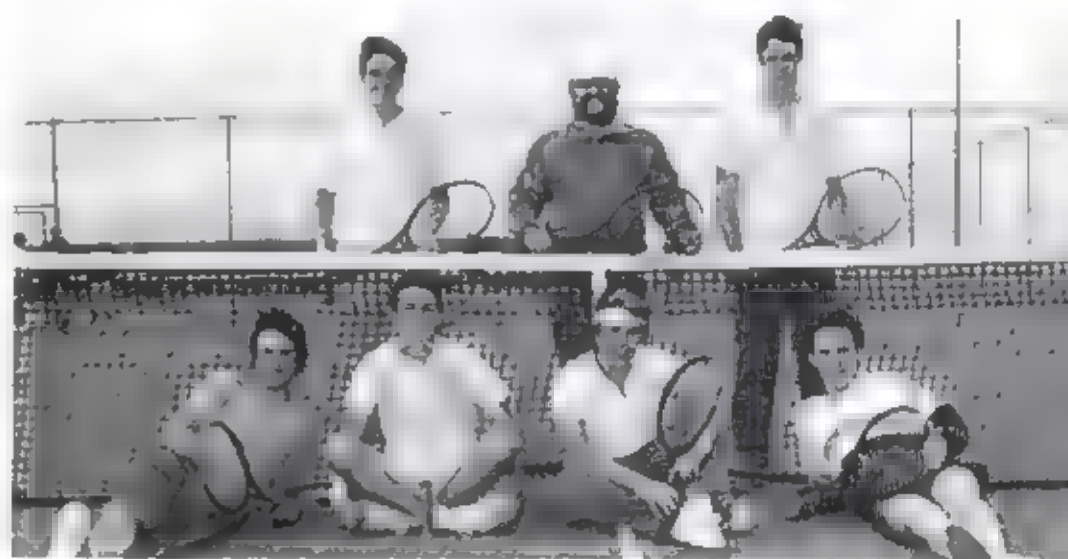

Varsity player Tari Hanneman focuses on the ball as she prepares to serve

Members of the Marana tennis teams' began this season with the hopes of placing high in the division and earning a chance to go to the state championships. The girls' team, led by first year coach Ms. Paddock, had their first match against rival Flowing Wells. The girls lost by a narrow margin, 5-4. Tari Hanneman, Laura Singleton and Michelle Hoskins, all returning varsity players, were expected to push the team toward the division title.

The boys' first match against Flowing Wells did not go as well as hoped. First-match nerves and varsity inexperience plagued the team as they lost 9-0. Mr. Urquides, returning in his seventh year as head coach, said this year will be somewhat of a rebuilding year after losing three varsity players from last year. The boys were expected to be led by returning lettermen Larry Johnson, Barney Holtzman, Mark Catt and JD Bair. Both teams ended their seasons with a trip to the Division II championships in April. Mr. Urquides and Ms. Paddock expected outstanding results from their varsity players.

"He said if I didn't do it, he wouldn't love me anymore."

"AND YOU KNOW WHAT? I GOT angry. It was such a trashy thing to say. Like I was so desperate for him I'd jump off a cliff or something.

We didn't have any birth control. I started out saying it was just the wrong time.

Then I started thinking it was the wrong guy.

After he said that, he put on this big act about it. If he really cared, he'd have let it drop. He'd have given me time.

I mean, you don't have to be the brain of the world to know you don't have sex without protection.

And you sure don't make a baby with a guy who thinks he can threaten you."

Nobody should pressure anybody to have sex. Especially if you feel you're not ready. Or prepared. It's a fact of life that if you have sex without safe, effective birth control, you're going to get pregnant. Who should be responsible for birth control? It can be you, it can be him, even better when it's both. If you need information or just someone to talk to, call your nearest Planned Parenthood. We can help. That's what we're here for.
